

The 24th Science Council of Asia Conference (24th SCAC)

Food Security, Sustainability, and Biodiversity

(A HYBRID EVENT WITH OPTIONS FOR PHYSICAL AND VIRTUAL PARTICIPATION)

16 - 18 November 2025

ABOUT THE EVENT

The current era of climatic challenges and a rising global population, achieving food security while preserving biodiversity and promoting sustainability has become one of the world's most pressing issues. Environmental hazards, rapid climate change, deforestation, habitat loss, and unsustainable agricultural practices are depleting ecosystems, threatening biodiversity, and compromising food production systems. The 24th Science Council of Asia Conference (24th SCAC) on Food Security, Sustainability, and Biodiversity, is being organized by the Pakistan Academy of Sciences (PAS), Islamabad, in collaboration with the financial support of the Science Council of Japan (SCJ). The Conference aims to bring together international experts, policymakers, academicians, business leaders, and practitioners to discuss innovative strategies, share knowledge, and forge partnerships for a sustainable future. The Event consists of keynote lectures, invited talks, and poster presentations to unite diverse voices, foster stirring dialogue, drive innovation, and shape policies that promote a resilient and sustainable future for humanity and the planet.
